CONFEDERATE REPORT OF THE NAVAL ENGAGEMENT BETWEEN THE
CONFEDERATE AND FEDERAL FLEET,
AT MEMPHIS, TENN.,
ON THE SIXTH DAY OF JUNE, 1862.

It was announced in the last issue of the AVALANCHE that the Federal Gun-boats were in the river just above the city, and that our fleet was at the wharf, prepared to dispute their passage down. About 6 o'clock yesterday morning the Federal fleet made its appearance just above the city, and immediately our fleet, under the gallant Commodore Ed. Montgomery, prepared for action. The fleet was composed of the General Van Dorn, (Flag-ship,) General Price, General Bragg, Jeff. Thompson, General Lovell, General Beauregard, Sumter and Little Rebel—all Rams. The steamer Van Dorn, which we are informed Commodore Montgomery adopted as his Flag-ship, at a late hour Thursday night, opened the ball by advancing up as far as Wolf river, and commenced a fire upon the Federal fleet. Several shots were fired from the Confederate fleet before any reply was made, the Federal fleet still advancing. Soon, however, the Federal fleet opened a brisk fire, which was continued on both sides for perhaps half an hour, the shots, both sides, falling wide of the mark, and no damage done either side. In the meantime several more of the Federal fleet had arrived in sight, when Commodore Montgomery ordered his fleet to fall back. Two Federal rams—Queen-of-the-West and Monarch—now came down under a full head of steam, the Queen-of-the-West in the lead. The Confederate fleet prepared to meet them. The Queen-of-the-West made for the Beauregard, just opposite Beal street, but the latter evaded the blow, and ran into the former forward of the wheel-house. The damage appeared to be serious, and the Queen-of-the-West made for the Arkansas shore, where she remained during the remainder of the day. The Federal ram, Monarch, made directly for the Confederate fleet, and passed down rapidly. The Beauregard and the Price now made for the Monarch, all three coming rapidly together; but, unfortunately, the blow aimed by the Beauregard at the Monarch missed its object and struck the Price on the wheel-house, which was entirely torn off, and from which injuries she subsequently sank in shoal water on the Arkansas side. Her hull is still visible.

While these collisions were occurring, the Federal iron-clad boats, which had remained near Wolf river, contenting themselves with shooting at our boats, came down in line of battle, pouring a constant cannonade upon our boats, which were dropping down to the point beyond the Cotton-press. As they drew near and the cannonade became heavier, it was discovered that the General Lovell had been struck and was in a sinking condition. She neared the shore just below the Cotton-press and gradually careened over into deep water, while a few of those aboard escaped by swimming ashore and floating off on a raft. The fighting was now at close quarters, and the frequent discharge of small arms was heard as the contesting boats came along within a short distance of each other. It is supposed that many of our men were shot by the enemy's sharpshooters. Among those was Captain Cabel, of the Lovell, who was shot through the forehead and died instantly. He was an old Mississippi steamboatman, and a brave and gallant gentleman. It is said that all on the Lovell, except one wounded boy, escaped. The Little Rebel, which was moving all about in the midst of flying balls, was struck while going towards the Lovell, and she immediately made for the Arkansas shore, just out of range from our bluffs, and her officers and men are said to have escaped, and soon after the waves closed over her forever.

About this time it was obvious that the Beauregard, which kept up a constant fire while retreating, had been disabled. The enemy's boats closed in on her. She was raked fore and aft, and gradually sank opposite the mound in Fort Pickering. A Federal tug-boat went to her assistance in time, and her officers and men were taken prisoners. The remaining boats of the Confederate fleet, the Van Dorn, Jeff. Thompson, Sumter and Bragg, now moved down the river and rounded the point. It was soon discovered, however, that the Van Dorn, had been injured seriously. She is reported to have run ashore on the Arkansas side, when her men escaped, and flames were seen issuing from her decks. She burned down to her magazine by about 10 o'clock, when a most important and imposing spectacle was afforded in a grand explosion. The pursuit of the Bragg, Sumter and Jeff. Thompson still continued, the enemy still kept up a vigorous cannonade, and our boats replying at intervals.

In about an hour afterwards, the Federal ram, Monarch, and two Federal iron-clad boats returned to the city, the others continuing the fight, which seems to have lasted for a long time, as it was late in the afternoon before the remainder of the fleet returned, having captured the General Bragg and the Sumter, and we suppose, though we have not heard, sunk the Jeff. Thompson. Thus the enemy seems to have captured or destroyed our whole fleet.

Bell's Golden Wafers are Notorious.—See page 9.

In a short time after the return of a portion of the Federal fleet, one of the Federal boats approached the wharf with a flag of truce, and one of the officers and three men proceeded to the Mayor's office, where the following demand for the city was made:

U. S. FLAG-STEAMER "BENTON," OFF MEMPHIS, June 6th, 1862.

To his Honor the Mayor of the city of Memphis.

SIR: I have respectfully to request that you will surrender the city of Memphis to the authority of the United States, which I have the honor to represent.

I am, Mr. Mayor, with high respect, your most ob't servant,

C. H. DAVIS, Flag-officer, Commanding, &c.

Mayor Park replied as follows, not surrendering the city:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, MEMPHIS, June 6th, 1862.

C. H. Davis, Flag-officer, Commanding, &c.

SIR: Your note of this date is received and contents noted. In reply, I have only to say, that as the civil authorities have no means of defense, by the force of circumstances, the city is in your hands.

Respectfully,

JOHN PARK, Mayor.

After receiving the Mayor's reply, the Federal officer and men, surrounded by a crowd of excited men and boys, proceeded to the Postoffice building, where, after much delay, they succeeded in raising the stars and stripes. The crowd on the way, and while at the Postoffice, indulged their privilege of hurraing for "President Davis," and groaning for Lincoln and the Yankees. At times the demonstration was quite boisterous. While the Federal officers were putting up the flag on the Postoffice, and just as it was completed, some one in the crowd below shot a pistol at the men on the house, which missed its object entirely. It is reported that while the Federals were up putting the flag on the Postoffice, some men went up and fastened the trap door, so that they could not get down. They were detained there some time, and it was threatened that if they were not permitted to return, the city would be shelled. The spirit of the crowd, about this time, was rampant, and groans and all sorts of contemptuous expressions and acts were indulged. Finally, a Federal guard to watch the flag and prevent its being pulled down arrived, and the first Federal party returned. The officer attempted to make a few remarks after the flag was put up, but his voice was drowned in the general cry of "Hurrah for Jeff. Davis," and all sorts of groans.

All the morning the Federal transports, filled with troops, were arriving, and the wharf and bluff were lined with men and women, walking and riding in all sorts of vehicles, each anxious to see what was to be seen. Indeed, the interest, or rather curiosity, did not abate during the day.

After the return of the first Federal party to their boats, the Confederate flag floating from the flag-staff on the bluff attracted their attention, and a force was sent to take it down. Here again the spirit of the people exhibited itself. Threats to shoot the man who should climb the pole were indulged. Several fights occurred in the crowd which assembled, some one or two who evinced sympathy were fallen upon by the newsboys and soundly thrashed. Finally the pole was cut down and the flag with it. Afterwards the crowd dispersed, and the city remained comparatively quiet. All our stores and places of business were closed, and in the afternoon more than Sabbath quietness prevailed.

The Federal fleet, now in front of the city, is quite numerous, and consists as follows: Gunboat Benton, (flag-ship of Commodore Davis,) Captain Phelps commanding. She mounts fourteen guns. Gunboat St. Louis, Captain McGonegle, thirteen guns; gunboat Mound City, Captin A. W. Kelly, thirteen guns; gunboat Louisville, Captain Dove, thirteen guns; gunboat Cairo, Captain ———, thirteen guns; gunboat Carondelet, Captain Walke, thirteen guns; three mortar boats and twenty rams and transports, including the Monarch, Queen-of-the-west, Lancaster No. 3, John M. Dickey, Henry Von Phul, Cheeseman and others.

The loss of men on our fleet was undoubtedly destructive, but we have no means of finding out the number or the names of those brave and gallant men. It is reported that the Federals lost only one man, and took about one hundred prisoners.

The Confederate fleet was really in no condition to encounter such a formidable opposition. At best they were only rams, which had already seen good service. The infantry, sharpshooters and artillerymen, who had acted so well when in the former engagement, had all been taken off and sent to our army below, and the boats and guns were left to be managed by steamboatmen who knew but little about shooting cannon. All the rifles had been taken away, and the consequence was that our men in exposed places labored under disadvantages. But, notwithstanding all this, Commodore Montgomery preferred to fight and die gloriously rather than his fleet should play the ignoble part enacted by Tatnall with the Virginia. His determination against the great odds against him may be deemed rash, if not foolhardy, but there are many who feel better to-day, for the effort he so generously made to demonstrate the great fact that war means fighting—a proposition which many leaders higher in command than the heroic Montgomery would do well to profit by.

During the afternoon Mayor Park received a communication from Com. Davis, announcing that he had placed the city under military authority, and that he would be pleased to have his co-operation. We subjoin the correspondence:

U. S. FLAG-STEAMER "BENTON," OFF MEMPHIS, June 6th, 1862,

To his Honor, the Mayor of the City of Memphis:

SIR: The undersigned, commanding the military and naval forces in front of Memphis, have the honor to say to the Mayor of the city, that Colonel Fitch, commanding the Indiana brigade, will take military possession of the city immediately.

Colonel Fitch will be happy to receive the co-operation of his Honor, the Mayor, and the city authorities, in maintaining peace and order; and to this end he will be pleased to confer with his Honor at the military headquarters at three o'clock this afternoon.

The undersigned have the honor to be, with high respect, your most obedient servants,

C. H. DAVIS, Flag-officer Commanding Afloat,
G. N. FITCH, Col. Commanding Indiana Brigade.

REPLY.

MAYORS' OFFICE, June 6th, 1862.

To Flag-officer C. H. Davis and Colonel G. N. Fitch:

GENERAL: Your communication is received, and I shall be happy to co-operate with Colonel commanding in providing measures for maintaining peace and order in the city. Your most ob't servant,

JOHN PARK, Mayor.

In pursuance of the above, Mayor Park had a consultation with Colonel Fitch, who last night detailed some three or four hundred soldiers as a police force to protect the peace of the city. It is understood that for some days to come a very large force will be detailed for duty day and night. The object being to prevent the least disorder. It is also stated that the military authorities have appointed a Provost Marshal, Captain John H. Gould, who will to-day enter upon the discharge of his duties.

We conclude our observations on the day with the simple remark, that the better class of citizens demeaned themselves with the utmost propriety, and that if there was any demonstration other than of opposition to the invaders, we did not hear of it.

(The AVALANCHE, who made these remarks, is now the BULLETIN, with the same Proprietor.—A. C. DENSON.)

THE FEDERALS IN MEMPHIS.

The Federals have reached and now possess Memphis; six gunboats of most excellent proof, frown upon it, and from the Postoffice now floats the Federal flag, symbolic of their presence and present power.

The flag-ship of Commodore Davis, the Benton, lies dark and threatening within fifty yards of the shore, and in close proximity floats her five scarce less powerful and destructive companions. Mortar boats are on the Arkansas side with their massive engines of destruction; the "Dickey," their commissary boat, and the Platte Valley, a transport, are moored at our wharf, and contain two Illinois regiments, the 43d and 46th, under the command of Col. Fitch, while afar off, repose the "swift and stiff" rams of Colonel Ellet.

As all outbreak or provocation to anger by our people, of such a force as this, were but a wanton irritation to destructive anger, or as some would have it, would be a plausible excuse for it, we trust, indeed we little doubt, that our citizens will be wary, calm and careful, attending to their civic avocations, if they choose to resume them, in such way as neither to provoke harsh measures or painful hauteurs.

The immediate command of the city itself will, we judge, devolve upon Col. Fitch, now acting as Brigadier General. He is reported a brave and efficient soldier to the Government he serves; has been in the pours passe, a strong Breckenridge democrat, and in private life bears the reputation of a man of high and sensitive honor.

In the exchange of one military rule for another, however different the merits of the respective Central Governments which the officers serve, the municipal affairs of the city will be little affected, and the individual citizen must in such case be prudent to be wise, and in this juncture, he is most truly valorous who is most discreet—neither quick to give nor to take offense.

When men are agitated, the unthinking are foremost to the fray, to its continuance, to its erection, and the scum of the boiling pot will ever be uppermost. The Mayor and the present Military Commander of the city will, we trust, see to the rapid establishment of a sufficient and reliable police, whose watchfulness may be needed to prevent all useless and dangerous ebullitions of feelings, as much to be deprecated by the civililians of Memphis as by those who are now its possessors.

WHO LIVES IN MEMPHIS?

The question which forms the caption of our article were more easily answered if it were in the negative,—who does not live in Memphis.

Many of the strongest advocates of the Confederacy have left us, where their circumstances were such as to permit their leaving. Hundreds have left Memphis for more Southern localities, in advance of the approach of the Federal fleet; among these were many, who though indifferent to political revulsions, feared the coming power, and among those were many of the best and most useful citizens of Memphis.

All soldiers or attaches of the Confederate armies have left Memphis.

All the Banking Institutions, with Presidents, Tellers, Cashiers and Accountants, have left Memphis, with a very few exceptions.

Our late ruler, the commander of the Post, Colonel Rosser, than whom there is no more affable, gentlemanly, able or kind hearted officer, has left Memphis.

Colonel McKisick, our late Provost Marshal, who discharged the onerous and often displeasing duties imposed upon him with so ardent a desire "to do right" as to have earned for himself the hearty commendations of a large majority of those ever having "to do" with him, has left Memphis.

Many of the best Physicians of the city, of its most able, most admired men and women, have left Memphis.

The "who lives in Memphis?" Its civilians. We use the word in contradistinction to polition as to soldier. The men with whom the duties and inclinations of domesticity have rendered business, home, and pursuits of literature or art, paramount to the most boisterous attraction of military distinction—men. Civilian in taste as in occupation, form now the population of Memphis.

Not only is Memphis extra-civilian in its population now, but also in its possessions. All arms, all munitions of war, the very sinews of war, (the Banks,) all down to the last pound of commissary bacon, and the last pint of commissary flour, have been removed, and the leavings in civilian possessions themselves are also of the meagerest.

THE LATE NAVAL ENGAGEMENT.

In our notice of the Naval engagement before Memphis on Friday morning, it appears that we were incorrect in some particulars, which we proceed to correct:

The General Lovell was sunk, as we said, near the Cotton-press. The loss of life is said to have been large. Only about twenty escaped out of eighty-five on board. Captain Cable was killed by a rifle ball early in the action, and his boat was comparatively unmanageable afterwards. A few of the men who floated off from the wreck, were picked up at Fort Pickering by a Federal tug.

The Sterling Price was run into by the Beauregard, and carried over on the Arkansas side, where she now lays. It is said that she can be easily repaired.

The Beauregard was both shot and rammed, and sunk in the middle of the river opposite Fort Pickering.

The Jeff. Thompson blew up round the point towards President's Island. Her timbers are lying all about the cotton-wood on the Arkansas shore. Her smoke-stack is yet standing above water. The shock of the explosion made some persons believe that it was an earthquake.

The Little Rebel, which ran ashore just round the point on the Arkansas side, did not sink, as was at first reported. She was shot through the side into the coal-bunks, and would have sunk but for running ashore. She has been recovered, and is now anchored among the Federal fleet. Her damage, it is said, can be easily repaired.

The General Bragg was slightly injured by a shot about the wheel, and was captured. She got a smash in the side.

The Sumter, as already stated, was likewise captured. She is in good condition.

The Van Dorn, Commodore Montgomery's Flag-ship, was the only one of the Confederate fleet which escaped. She was pursued some ten miles, but she was too fleet to be captured.

The number of prisoners taken ranges from seventy to one hundred, about about twenty being officers. We cannot get any details about the loss in killed, though enough is known to induce the belief that it was fearful.

COMMENT.

The next day all business was suspended, and great was the rejoicing and congratulations of the Union men, whose hearts swelled with grateful emotion to the just and divine Giver of all good, for delivering the few from the oppression of the tyrants who had usurped the control of affairs in Memphis for the last fourteen months. They were glad, and rejoiced to see that splendid emblem of Liberty once more unfurled to the breeze.

Respectfully, &c.,

A. C. DENSON.

TO THE MERCHANTS AND BUSINESS MEN

OF THE CITY OF ST. LOUIS, MO.

GENTLEMEN: Having conceived the idea that Memphis, Tenn., St. Louis, Mo., New York, Cairo, and all the Lower Mississippi trade must soon return to her former and natural channel, the time has arrived when a General Business Directory was greatly needed as a beacon to point out to all Merchants, Business Men, Hotels, Railroads, Insurance Companies, Bankers and Speculators, the names and locations, together with the respective business of each of those great cities, so that, at a glance at this General Business Directory, every one wishing to do business from home (which all business men have more or less to do) can see some reliable BUSINESS MAN'S name in each city on whom he can rely to do his business with; and commencing with a General Directory for all the principal and business part of the city of Memphis, we came to St. Louis to lay our plans and views before its merchants and business men, over two hundred and fifty of which at once saw through the grand scheme of converting the trade to this great natural route again. They also saw the advantages of again laying their business before the almost new population of those great cities, and have nobly assisted us to carry out the grand plan by advertising liberally in our Memphis Directory, for which allow us, gentlemen, one and all, to tender you our very sincere thanks. And here let us assure you all that our motto has always been that of Julius Cæsar, when he wrote back to the Roman Senate after conquering a whole nation, veni, vidi, vici, that is, I came, I saw, I conquered; the interpretation of which is that we always succeed in whatever we undertake; hence this great work must be accomplished, and with our energy and such patronage as the St. Louis merchants have given us, we feel confident of success. Our Agent in New York informs us that the merchants of that city are taking the matter in hand, and that we will be able to get a large advertising list in the great metropolis of Uncle Sam's dominions.

In Richard Edwards' St. Louis Directory for 1864 (which, by the way, is the best compiled and general Directory that we have ever seen) we find it recorded that in 1822 St. Louis was chartered as a city. From this date the increase was rapid, and, says Mr. Edwards, the old French city was soon swallowed up in the young American city. From 1825 the influx of emigration began to be of importance and the commerce of the city took onward strides. In 1829 the keel boat entirely disappeared and magnificent steamboats lined the Levee of the young giant city of the West, extensive warehouses were erected of brick and stone on a scale which shows that visions of the present were vividly portrayed to the minds of the people of that day. He further adds, the population of the city of St. Louis is now roughly estimated at 200,000, though the war has seriously checked and retarded the commercial prosperity of the whole Western country. St. Louis has now regained her energies and is progressing more rapidly than ever, and by once more commanding the direct trade of the Lower Mississippi and connecting it with St. Louis and New York, her immense wealth must reach an unprecedented amount, equalled by no other Western or North-Western city.

But now let us take up the subject of Directories. Almost all who have ever looked into a Directory of any city, find it at once clogged with superfluous matter, telling of a thousand and one names before the business man's name can be found. A Business Directory is free from all those inconveniences, besides it is worth but little to a practical business man to know where Tom, Bill or Catherine lives or works; and all the experience we have had with Directories proves them to be unprofitable to the publishers. Read what Mr. Edwards says of the history of the St. Louis Directories.

The first Directory of St. Louis was published in 1821. Mr. John A. Paxton who had previously published Directories in Philadelphia and other Eastern cities, being on a visit to St. Louis, was urged by his friends to try the experiment of publishing a Directory of the city, though St. Louis at that time contained less than 5,000 inhabitants. Mr. Paxton, therefore, is entitled to the credit of being the pioneer in the Directory business in St. Louis. He was also the first party who undertook to number the streets of our city. His enterprise in publishing the Directory not meeting with a remunerative support, he did not repeat the experiment.

The next experiment of the kind was tried by Mr. Charles Keemle, in 1826, who, in conjunction with Mr. Orr, published another one, neither of which, however, proved profitable ventures.

St. Louis was not again represented by a Directory until 1833, when Mr. Charles Keemle again entered the field, but with very indifferent success.

After this an interval of nearly ten years elapsed before any one could be found with hardihood enough to venture on the publication of a Directory, so, bad a repute had been thrown upon the enterprise by repeated failures. However, in 1842 Messrs. Chambers and Knapp entered the field and produced a Directory, to which was prefixed a sketch of the city by Col. Chambers. The pecuniary result of this was no better than its predecessors, at any rate, not sufficient to induce either of the publishers to renew their efforts in that line of business.

There was a Directory published for 1846-7, entitled "Green's St. Louis Directory," by Green, Cathcart and Prescott, by which the proprietors sustained loss.

In 1848 there was a Directory gotten up by J. H. Sloss, and printed by Charles and Hammond, and in 1851 another one appeared by Mr. Green, and was printed by the same firm. There was no money in either of them.

In 1852 there was a Directory by Morrison, published by Chambers and Knapp, which scarcely paid its own expenses. For 1854-5 Mr. Timothy Knox published one, gotten up with great care and printed by Chambers and Knapp, but, like all its predecessors, it was not patronized sufficiently to pay. Mr. R. V. Kennedy published the next general City Directory, in 1857, and after bestowing many months time upon it, found himself, on its completion, heavily burdened with debts contracted to bring it out. In 1859 we became associated with Mr. Kennedy in the publication, Mr. T. M. Halpin having charge of the compiling department, and this has been the only one instance in which a support sufficient to sustain the enterprise has been given to a Directory in this city. In 1860, the last issue previous to the present volume, Mr. Kennedy had to abandon the publication previous to completion for want of means, and we had, under the most embarrassing circumstances to put the volume through the press at a loss of several hundred dollars.

Mr. Edwards entered the field against all these records and has succeeded in 1864 to publish the best and most complete Directory which has appeared.

We have met with Mr. Edwards and are pleased to say we found him to be a gentleman in every sense of the term, and he proposes to get out a general Directory in St. Louis for 1855, in which we wish him every success; and here we would remark that Mr. Edwards's Directory and ours does not conflict in the least, as his is a general and business census Directory for St. Louis and confined to that city alone, while ours is strictly a business Directory and cheap Advertiser, which commences with the great city of Memphis, Tenn., combining St. Louis and New York city in brotherhood and mutual interest, having a large circulation in each city, together with a large inland town and village circulation throughout and near the whole route from New Orleans to St. Louis and New York.

This great business Directory, when completed, will contain historical and thrilling incidents of the great Rebellion, sufficient to make it a readable book everywhere, and the very low price for which it will be sold will enable every hotel and steamboat, railway and express office, bankers and all business men over the whole country to have a copy.

And now, gentlemen, tendering our thanks to all who have so liberally patronized us in the beginning of this great enterprise, we wish you all the good success that falls to the lot of good men, and we would also here tender our sincere thanks to Mr. J. J. Marquis, our general canvassing agent, for his invaluable and energetic services in procuring advertisements for the Memphis branch of the Directory. Also to Mr. P. M. Pinckard for the very neat style and short order in which he has got out the same. And wishing you all the most unlimited success, we subscribe ourself,

Your most obedient and very humble servant,

Respectfully,

A. C. DENSON, Editor and Proprietor.

We annex the following from the Memphis Argus of Jan. 16, 1865, and the St. Louis Republican of Jan. 27th, showing conclusively that our views were correct when we commenced the Memphis, St. Louis and New York Business Directory :

[From the Memphis Argus, Jan. 16.]

TRADE IN THE LOWER MISSISSIPPI COUNTRY.

The events of the past fortnight have shown a decided improvement in trade under the new regime. As the recently inaugurated regulations of the military and treasury departments become more familiar to the people, and those executing them are enabled to more fully impress upon the latter the importance of making strenuous endeavors to guard against infractions of necessary requirements which must be observed in order to guard against fraud and indirect commerce with the enemy, trade matters loosen and prospects brighten. When General Dana assumed command of the Department of Mississippi, Gen. Canby, the chief of the grand military division, was acting in accordance with the previous regulations, which almost closed the avenues of commerce. In fact, trade in the products of the insurrectionary districts soon ceased to exist, save in name.

Only a short time since the new treasury regulations were promulgated by Major-General Canby to the military division, and through the department commanders to the people. When issued they found the new and important department of Mississippi in process of organization—a work demanding no small attention and attended with much difficulty. The department had to be thoroughly organized, important military expeditions fitted out and sent on their missions, and the vast and complicated machinery of the treasury department put in operation and caused to work in harmony with the military regulations at one and the same time, and by the same controlling power. Yet all was speedily and successfully accomplished. Military men tell us that the department organization is thorough and complete; the expeditions sent out by General Dana were eminently successful and speak for themselves; and the city is being rapidly filled with cotton brought here in accordance with the new regulations.

In enforcing the emphatic and strict orders of his superior, General Dana has been correspondingly strict, as it was intended by Gen. Canby that he should be. Every possible precaution against illicit commercial intercourse with the enemy has been taken, and in making these dispositions the most rigid system has been inaugurated. Rather than permit the government to be imposed upon, the general commanding has chosen, as the only alternative, that applicants for trade privileges be required to conform to certain formal, and, for a time, troublesome requirements.

When all things are considered; when it is remembered that since the new trade regulations were put in operation, two or three important military expeditions have been sent out from this point, a great measure of whose success depended upon the secrecy of their preparation and movements—a fact generally inducing commanders to temporarily close the lines altogether, which was not done in the instances referred to—it seems surprising that any considerable trade could have prevailed since the inauguration of the new regulations.

All interested should endeavor to more perfectly familiarize themselves with the regulations, both of the military and treasury department. Those who have done so experience little difficulty and get along very well.

TRADE WITH THE REBELLIOUS STATES.

The controversy over the trade in cotton through our lines has not yet broken out with its full force. The introduction of a bill by Senator Collamer, repealing the eighth section of the law of the last session, commenced the ball, but it has not received the impetus that awaits it by developments soon to be made. The Senator, like many other Senators, had a speech on hand which he desired to get rid of, and did so on the introduction of the bill. In denouncing the law of the last session, he endeavored to show its evil; and in order to prove that he was of the same opinion when it passed, he declared that it was acted upon by the Senate when he was away; but unfortunately, he was immediately shown the record, where his name was recorded in its favor on its final passage. The contest will now be confined to the committee for some time. The House Committee in the meantime are investigating the subject and hearing the statements of both sides of the question. The opposition to the law of the last session is based upon the letter of General Canby. But the letter of the President to that General, in reply to his letter, will no doubt bring about a change in the programme. Mr. Lincoln, in his letter, showed the necessity of bringing out all the cotton possible, and that in a financial point of view, it was absolutely essential almost to the furnishing of contraband goods in return. The tone of the letter and its treatment of the objections raised by General Canby to the trade in cotton, it is thought, will bring about a decided change in the opinions of military men in the Mississippi Valley.

Denson's Memphis, St. Louis, New York and New Orleans Directory, will be the Cheapest Advertiser Out.

Besides that, the President has sent a letter on the same subject to Major-General Dana, of which the following is an exact copy:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, }
WASHINGTON, January 6, 1865. }

MAJOR-GENERAL DANA: The attached document, purporting to be an order issued by your authority, is sent you with a request that you will inform me whether such order had been issued by you; and if it had, please inform me by what authority it is that you undertake to impose terms in the premises not imposed by the Government, which in effect entirely thwarts and defeats the object of the Government.

It is suggested that, if executed in good faith, the order of Government in the matter in question, or in any other matter, operates unfavorably to the military service, it would be proper for you to report to the Government fully upon it, and that would be the only proper course.

Yours, &c.,

(Signed)

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

This letter shows the feeling of the President against the military commanders who have defeated the operations of the law. But it is nothing to the vim and argument used in the letter to General Canby, in which the President treated the subject as a financial necessity. As soon as these letters are thoroughly understood in Congressional circles, there will be some rich developments on this subject. More than one official under the power of the President may find that he holds his place by a slender thread, and cannot defy the President, as they seem to imagine, with impunity.

The above shows most positively that the Government does not intend to cripple the business of the great Mississippi Valley; and as soon as the machinery can be put in motion trade will be unparalleled.

In closing, we would advise all who go to Memphis to sojourn at the Hardwick House, and all Memphians who come to St. Louis to stay at the Union Hotel, corner of Fourth and Myrtle streets, where all will fare sumptuously, at rates that will not demolish the contents of your purse the first day.

DOCTOR WHITTIER,

A regularly-bred Physician, from the MEDICAL COLLEGE OF CANADA, Toronto, as his Diploma, which hangs in his office, will show, dated 1848, where all who receive honors are by law obliged to study five years at least, and then pass a rigid examination—not as in the west, two short winter terms of 16 weeks each. Dr. Whittier has made Chronic Diseases the study of his life, and has a Union-wide reputation, having been longer located in St. Louis than any other Chronic Disease Physician.

Much of his practice has been of a private nature, Syphilis, Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, all Urinary Diseases, Syphilitic or Mercurial Affections of the Throat, Skin or Bones; Orchitis, Hernia or Rupture; also, the effects of a Solitary Habit, ruinous to Body and Mind, producing Blotches, Debility, Impotency, Dizziness, Dimness of Sight, Confusion of Ideas, Evil Foreboding, Aversion to Society, Loss of Memory, Weakness, &c.; not all these in any one case, but all occurring frequently in various cases.

Accommodations ample, charges moderate, cures guaranteed. Consultation by letter or at office, free. Most cases can be properly treated without an interview, and medicines secure from observation sent by mail. No hindrance to business in most cases. Address Box 3092, St. Louis, Mo.

HOOURS—8 A. M. to 8 P. M. OFFICE permanently located at 65 St. Charles Street, between Sixth and Seventh, one square South of Lindell Hotel, a retired spot in the center of the city.

Consultation Rooms, and Rooms for the Accommodation of such Patients as require daily personal Attention.

EVERYBODY

Can get, in a sealed letter envelope, my Theory, Symptoms and Treatment of Nervous, Urinary and Sexual Diseases, clearly delineating all the diseased conditions, with full Symptom Lists, for two three cent postage stamps to prepay postage. Circular for Ladies, relating to Disease of Puberty, Menstruation and Pregnancy, three cents. By the use of these lists, patients at a distance can answer the same questions that a scientific Physician would ask at a personal interview, and in many cases much better, as they would have more time for reflection. He keeps a systematic record of all his practice—the symptoms, the drugs used, quantity used, time of using, &c., and the experience thus gathered is treasured up in these records. He avoids the use of mercury or poisonous drugs—succeeds better by a judicious alternation of remedies, mostly vegetable.

Difference between Advertising in a Newspaper and a Directory.

FIRST. When Country people go to town they have no time to read newspapers, hence they ask the landlord, where is the best place to get what they wish to purchase the cheapest? he hands them a Directory and they select their man.

SECONDLY. When we start from Memphis, Vicksburg, New Orleans or Cairo, to St. Louis and New York, to buy goods, we look in the Directory of our city to see who has the articles we wish, in the greatest assortments.

THIRDLY. All business men are always busy, and only take time to refer to their Directory to inform a friend or customer where he can buy any article that he may not have in his line.

FOURTHLY. Advertisements in a General Business Directory are guaranteed the whole year, where all read and see them, for one-eighth of what newspapers charge for a month.

Denson's Memphis, St. Louis, New York and New Orleans Directory, will be the Cheapest Advertiser Cut.

A. C. DENSON'S NEW ORLEANS DIRECTORY, FOR 1865.

Its superior importance as an Advertising medium to St. Louis, Cairo, Memphis and New York Merchants.

This Directory will be gotten out, whether it pays or not.

Near SEVEN MILLION DOLLARS' worth of goods per month are allowed by the trade regulations to be bought and transported to the towns and cities on the Mississippi river; therefore, all who lay their commodities for sale before those people must insure a portion of their custom. Reliable Canvassers will visit all the principal merchants in the above named cities for advertisements; "and, as it takes money to make the mare go," no advertisements will be taken hereafter without one-third in advance; the balance when the book is completed and presented.

Being a Tennessean, and residing in the city of Memphis, I refer to the following gentlemen as to stability and capacity to perform everything undertaken:

BELL'S GOLDEN WAFERS!

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY FOR

Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture,

LEUCORRHEA, SPERMATORRHEA

AND SEMINAL WEAKNESS!

And a Radical, Speedy and Permanent Cure for any and all Diseases of the Urinary Organs.

The introduction of this remedy marks a new era in the history of medicine, whereas most of the so-called remedies for the foregoing troublesome complaints are offensive, nauseating and unpleasant to the senses, these WAFERS present, in the form of an elegant wafer or tablet, attractive both to the eye and taste, the most effectual and certain remedy ever used. They speedily eradicate all traces of the disease, purifying the system, and imparting tone to the organs affected.

BELL'S GOLDEN WAFERS!

Are prepared from an East Indian Plant, which has attained great celebrity from its effects upon the foregoing complaints. Its use was discovered by Prof. Edward Bell, of London, member of the Royal College of Surgeons. The Wafers contain no mercury or other poisonous ingredient, and can be safely used at all times without interference with one's habits or business.

They are put up in a neat, compact form, and can easily be carried in the pocket. For the private diseases of ladies, such as Whites or irregularities of any kind, they are invaluable; and they are also a certain remedy for Spermatorrhea.

TO J. M. TOMENY,

GARLAND P. WARE, WM. W. JONES, JOSEPH TAGG, A. G. BOWEN,
DR. A. GREG, J. D. DAVIS, J. W. MCINTYRE,
AND MATHEW PARKER:

Gentlemen:

Fully appreciating your worth as old and well-tried Union men, through the trials of Secession rule in 1861 and '62, I feel a grateful remembrance of your friendship during those stormy times, and take the liberty of dedicating to you this little Volume.

Hoping that when the years of toil have passed, and your mortal bodies are no longer seen among men, that your names shall stand as a splendid beacon on the solitudes of time, pointing out to all the future generations of the earth that there was a few loyal men in Memphis who stood firmly by the best government that the world has ever known.

Sincerely and gratefully yours,

A. CLARK DENSON.

A. CLARK DENSON,

Union World without End—Union in Nullification Times, and Union in Secesh Times.

A. CLARK DENSON, Editor Memphis Directory.

Blackstone says, every freeman has an undoubted right to lay what sentiments he pleases before the public; to forbid this is to destroy the freedom of the press; but if he publish what is improper, mischievous or illegal, he must take the consequences of his own temerity. We felt ourselves equal to any emergency when we commenced the publication of the World Without End. We love and adore the land of our birth; we are proud of her extent, her resources, her natural wealth; we believe her constitution to be as near perfection as any human institution can be, and we have always been very jealous of any interference with it at home or from abroad; we loved our nationality from an elevated and lofty patriotism; we have always been exquisitely sensitive and alive to the glory and happiness of our beloved country; we have always believed her to be the freest, best and greatest country ever known to man, with the best form of government that all the experience of the world could invent; and we have seen the intestine monsters aim to strike a death blow to civil and religious liberty, and plunge this happy people in deadly strife, drape the whole nation in mourning, and then set up a howl for the Union under our very nose, and expect us to keep quiet.

We stand with our pen and revolver ready for all such devils who may assail us.-- World Without End.

A P O L O G Y.

It is needless to attempt an apology for our inability to meet the tastes of all. These are as diversified as the circumstances and characters of men are different. It would be as fruitless a task as to attempt to reconcile the discordant opinions of an angry multitude by a look or word; as futile and as childish as was the attempt of Xerxes to chain the angry billows of the ocean, and render them obedient to his bidding. When we commenced canvassing the city for a Directory, we placed our local editor of the World Without End, Mr. B. L. Boyd, on one side of Main street and we took the other. Soon finding that two men were not sufficient, we advertised for two out-door clerks, on the 18th November, 1864. Before the advertisement was cold from the press, scores of men appeared at our office and we set them to work, and out of seventeen only four proved to be worth a continental "red." Such is the incompetency and worthlessness of mankind in these days of boasted "chivalry" and pretended enterprise. We paid them off and let them slide, and had much of the work to do over. The wife of our principal writer became sick about the pinch of time, hence we had to get a new man; consequently some errors must occur which was unavoidable under the militia arrangements of the city and the worthlessness of some of the men employed.

By reading the "Sketch on the Wing" annexed, it will be seen that many actually hid, and we never did nor ever will get their names or business. A few names are left out because they were too mean for my pen to write or money pay to put in print.

Taking the Census for a Memphis Directory—Stampede of the Natives before the Census-taker—He Overtakes the Multitude in their Wonderful Flight—One Thousand Stand Aghast, their Eyes Rolling Billiously in their Extended Sockets; While Five Hundred Seek their Holes, and are Immediately Lost from Mortal Vision—"Something New Out"—Military Order on Foot—U. S. D.'s Set to Work—Arrests to be Made and not to be Made—The Frightened Restored to their Ease—Resurrection of Social Feeling—Jollification at the Festive Board—All Things Right, "World Without End."

Our street canvasser for the census of Memphians relates some curious and startling events which occurred on his perambulations through the city, and for the truth of which he vouches with unflinching fidelity to "the oath," and if "military necessity" require it, will testify to the the same upon a stack of

"holy writ" reaching smack up to the moon, and jingling among the stars of Heaven's universal-canopy, even if it should curflumux the far distant pliades in the illimitable realms of space. Having his "meggs" already set and his plans systematically arranged, our hero, conscious of the vigor of active manhood, advanced upon the line of his duty with all the readiness of contrivance which Bacon would describe. It is said that "actions speak louder than words;" and this common saying appeared to receive verification when the sight of the blank-book and pencil, and the notings of names, occupation, and numbers, aroused the suspicions of the "business" fraternity, and elicited expressions of curiosity, indicative of mental confusion and very frightful quiverings of the cords of the human heart. Now, our man of the note-book is rather a modest, unassuming youngster, and of but few words, but in this respect he is not unlike the greatest chieftains who have accomplished the most wonderful ends from the sunrise of existence to the downfall of hope. U. S. Grant, Lieutenant-General, commanding the armies of the United States, is modest to look upon, but accomplishes whatever he undertakes, for he possesses a tenacity of purpose and an obstinacy of will, as does our note-book runner who followed up the affrighted natives, even after they had fallen into a stampede. Not a few fled into the alleys and dodged around the corners, as if pursued by ferocious wild beasts, while many were captured in the corners of back rooms and in cellars and garrets. "What's the matter?" cries one. "Is there something new out?" asks another. "What military order is it?" many want to know. "O, yes! it's taxes!" But, sir, I've paid my taxes; this tax, that tax, and another tax." "License!" "My licenses are paid; I paid them to such officer, and such officer, at such a time and at such a place. Here they are--my State and county license, and my city license. I surely don't have to pay any more license." "What has my husband done that you want him? He is a hard-working, honest man; he's done no harm to any one; he's got nothing only what belongs to him; he's paid for everything he's got." "What's up now?" "Are you a conscripting officer--taking down our names to conscript us?" "My arm's broke." "My leg's broke." "My foot's strained." "I've got the rheumatism, sir; had it these many years." "That big toe was split once, and I tell you I've got no use in it, not a bit." "I can't fight--can't drill, for I'm crippled." "Do you want a lame man?" "Now, that finger--I've got no use in it--how can I shoot with that?" One hundred and forty-nine Jews are running to and fro; they halt in private consultation in reference to the man that has the book and pencil. "What ish te matur; what for you take our names; I ish go to move, so it ish no use to take my name down," said one. "I dosh very leetle bisness, see, Ish got not much, just leetle one ting and nother, so, don' put me down, for I gets no bisness," said another; and in chimed four hundred and twenty-nine other voices in a manner which would have given credit to one thousand and one black-birds on a spring day. Let me have your card, sir, if you please, (addressing an American). "Our card! did you say? what do you want with our card?" was the response given with wonder, fear and trembling, at the same time handing a card, and hesitating deeply, curiosity ascending to the highest pitch, and countenance going down into the sunset of existence. (Whispering.) "See here, sir, I don't understand this; please, if you will, tell me the trouble that you want our card; have we done anything wrong? If we have, we did not intend it, for we aim to do a straightforward business." An explanation being made, the ominous clouds of fear disappeared from the "human face divine," and the gilding light of hope "lit up" and set it all aglow with characteristic smiles of sudden relief. "Well, indeed, sir, we thought you were a detective, trying to catch us in some snap. We are, sir, most agreeably disappointed in you and your business." The like of this, reader, had to be atoned for by a social glass at the wine-table, and then all went merry as thirteen marriage bells on a Christmas eve. Passing along another street, our "noter" was suddenly accosted with "that cotton's all right, sir, it's paid for, it's mine, and everything's right about it; this is my place, my number is —; I'm a straightforward man, world without end, by the holy of holies." "You say you are world without end?" "Yes, sir, I am, by all the good of heaven and the evil of earth, WORLD WITHOUT END!" That's the title of our paper." "Have you got a paper of that name?" "That's so." "Well, ha, ha, ha! I'm beat once. I must have that paper, certain; send me one, it suits me, that's my style. Come, let's go and take a drink." All repaired to the festive board where glasses were filled time and again, and drank as often as filled. Such a scene of convivial sociality was then and there inaugurated as would have created envy among the purest angels of the skies; such speeches fell as would have forestalled the market of Demosthenes or Cicero's eloquence. We don't imagine that it will ever be paralleled, even by the resurrection of the righteous dead, and the giving of them paying situations in the holy kingdom of a universe-sized mansion not made with hands, away off yonder in boundless space.

City Police of Memphis

Cannot suit everybody, nor can they do everything; but take them as a body, they will compare with any police anywhere; and for the last six months, no city similarly situated can boast of better order. There are times, that with all the watchfulness the same amount of men could bestow, now and then a desperado watches his chance, and commits some outrage to society. These things occur in the best regulated cities, and the police cannot help it. Besides all this, the police force in this city is not half large enough, and the poor miserable pittance allowed them is not only a disgrace to the City Fathers, but to civilization. Take into consideration that a man's whole time is occupied for at least eighteen hours out of every twenty-four, if he does his duty, and the high prices paid for all articles of consumption, and any one will admit that we are correct. Having been a private policeman, as sergeant, lieutenant, captain, city marshal and chief, for several years, we pretend to know something about policing—and we caution all who do not come to time and duty to look out for breakers.
